

Antonio is an old school art collector from Italy. He has been using computers for a few years with a help of his grandchild. Antonio would go to the artist's portfolio after seeing her exhibition in Rome, just to get the contact information of a gallery she works with. He is contemplating on contacting the artist herself hoping to get a better price on her next work.

Eva is a programmer. She is an experienced computer user. Her hobby is photography. Eva heard about an artist teaching a new painting technique merged with photography. She wants to check out the artist's portfolio. She is interested to learn about the artist's work and her background.